About Me

I was nine years old when I started programming basic websites for my friends and family. I took out books from the public library and began self-teaching.

This passion for programming has never gone away and I have managed to teach myself the skills I need to progress into the career path I want.

For the past 13 years, I have been working as an Early Childhood Educator, raising the next generation. When I wasn't educating or caring for the children, I was using breaks and naptime to develop new skills.

Education

University of Athabasca - Bachelor of Computer Science (Online)

Starting September 2022
